Bless the Lord

The Hebrew word barakh, which is usually translated “bless” means “to bestow ability for success” (from the greater person to the lesser) or “to praise a person’s ability for success” (from the lesser person to the greater). It refers to bending the knee or to kneel: to bless God as an act of adoration, to bless man as a benefit to him. To bless the Lord is to speak of His greatness, His mercy, His kindness, and His grace. The list could go on and on.

The psalmist speaks of this wonderfully in KJV Psalm 103 <A Psalm of David.> Bless the LORD, O my soul: and all that is within me, bless his holy name. Bless the LORD, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits: Who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thy diseases; Who redeemeth thy life from destruction; who crowneth thee with lovingkindness and tender mercies; Who satisfieth thy mouth with good things; so that thy youth is renewed like the eagle’s. The LORD executeth righteousness and judgment for all that are oppressed. He made known his ways unto Moses, his acts unto the children of Israel. The LORD is merciful and gracious, slow to anger, and plenteous in mercy. He will not always chide: neither will he keep his anger for ever. He hath not dealt with us after our sins; nor rewarded us according to our iniquities. For as the heaven is high above the earth, so great is his mercy toward them that fear him. As far as the east is from the west, so far hath he removed our transgressions from us. Like as a father pitieth his children, so the LORD pitieth them that fear him. For he knoweth our frame; he remembereth that we are dust. As for man, his days are as grass: as a flower of the field, so he flourisheth. For the wind passeth over it, and it is gone; and the place thereof shall know it no more. But the mercy of the LORD is from everlasting to everlasting upon them that fear him, and his righteousness unto children’s children; To such as keep his covenant, and to those that remember his commandments to do them. The LORD hath prepared his throne in the heavens; and his kingdom ruleth over all. Bless the LORD, ye his angels, that excel in strength, that do his commandments, hearkening unto the voice of his word. Bless ye the LORD, all ye his hosts; ye ministers of his, that do his pleasure. Bless the LORD, all his works in all places of his dominion: bless the LORD, O my soul.

Another way to consider blessings is to look at the contradictory word which is cursing. When we bless someone we are speaking well of them and when we curse someone we are speaking evil about them. David in this psalm speaks highly of the Lord, he blesses the Lord. In fact he reminds himself and us as the reader/hearer of this psalm that we are to do this with all of our being. We are to praise God with all of our might and strength in essence with our very lives, because our lives belong to Him. We read in this psalm that things have changed for us as far as our standing with God is concerned. We who are fallen have been restored. We who are mortal have been given immortality. We who are sinful have had our sins removed. We who deserve punishment because of our rebellion have received a pardon. God in His kindness has exercised mercy toward us and not just a little mercy but mercy that is eternal. We have received blessing from our God even though we deserved a curse. God speaks His grace into our lives through the finished work of Christ: His shed blood covers our sins and His powerful resurrection lifts us from the realm of death and cursing into the realm of life and blessing. We are of all people most blessed because “As far as the east is from the west, so far has He removed our transgressions from us.” We bless God because He has taken us out of our oppression and has not rewarded us according to our sins, but rather He took our sins and laid them on His Son so that we would be made right through Him: 2 Corinthians 5:21 “For he hath made him to be sin for us, who knew no sin; that we might be made the righteousness of God in him.”

So come church and bless the Lord. Speak of Him who is our Redeemer and Savior. Speak of Him who doesn’t give you what you deserve but rather what you don’t. Speak of Him who would be just in exercising His wrath toward us who are sinners, but chose instead to exercise His mercy toward us. Come into his courts with thanksgiving and into His throne room with praise. Come to the place where we find grace to help in time of need, the place where we find mercy and forgiveness. Come to the author and finisher of your faith. Come to Jesus who endured the cross, despising the shame, and is seated at the right hand of the throne of God. There you will find mercy, there you will find grace, there you will find forgiveness, and there you will find rest for your weary soul. Come church and let us “Bless the Lord.”

God’s Peace, Pastor Dennis Hannu
